

A Traditional Uttarayan Celebration

10 years of serving excellence and counting...

Basking under the winter sun is a pleasant experience when the weather is cold. The winters begin to recede from January 14th, which marks the festival of Uttarayan in India. Also known as Makar Sankranti, the word Uttarayan literally translates to the earth moving into the northern axis around the Sun. Unlike most Hindu festivals that follow the lunar motion, Makar Sankranti follows the motion of the sun and indicates the end of winter season.

Uttarayan is also symbolically celebrated as the winter-crop harvesting festival across India. In Gujarat, traditional food such as Undhiyu, Fafda-Jalebi, Tal papdi and Chikki are savored celebrating the fresh harvest and the festivities grips the locals.

On this joyous occurrence, 24 Seven - The Coffee Shop curates an Uttarayan Special Dinner Buffet on 14th January to mark the festival, showcasing the traditional delicacies from the region. Enjoy the finest gourmet recipes prepared customarily for the occasion and a remarkable feast and celebratory desserts for the foodies with a sweet tooth will add to the festive dinner experience.

Uttarayan is also traditionally the kite flying festival for passionate kite-flying enthusiasts. From little kids to adults, everyone engages in a kite-flying frenzy. The mood set amidst festive food, music, and soaring kites, blanketing the crisp winter skies in colourful specs from dawn to dusk clasps the fervour of the occasion. Unleash the pleasure of Kite flying at an Uttarayan Special event hosted at Madhubhan lawns for its discerning guests and kite fans.

Join us this Uttarayan for a feast of fresh harvest and glimpse the rich Gujarati culture. Team Madhubhan is delighted to celebrate this unique annual festival with you and your loved ones.

Happy Uttarayan!
