Rang Barse

Holi is a unique festival that the Indian sub-continent is recognized for. The annual festival is celebrated with great enthusiasm at the beginning of spring equinox, implying the victory of good over the evil.

The festival of colors is marked with loud music, folkloric dances, and affectionately rubbing dry colors known as Gulal and Abeer on family and friends. The night before Holi, a sacred bonfire is set called "Holika Dahan". People gather around this pyre to perform rituals and offer prayers symbolising that the evil within must be cleansed with the burning fire.

The following morning is celebrated as Holi or Dhuleti, a free-for-all celebrations of, burst of colours. Regardless of India's diverse expanse and varied cultures, Holi is celebrated with immense zeal and the madness of colors engulfs people like no other.

Holi has a tradition that lies deep in the Indian culture.

People celebrate oneness and play with colors, forgetting all enmity and spreading love and bonding through colors. The day is also celebrated as Rang Panchami in the remembrance of the divine love of Radha and Krishna. Though the festival of Holi is special to the entire Nation, Mathura and Vrundavan host extraordinary traditional festivities those are rare and worth experiencing.

So, on this festival of Holi, let's all forget the divides, create moments of togetherness, celebrating it with fun and exuberance.

Team Madhubhan wishes all its guests a happy, joyous and vibrant festival of Holi.

Happy Holi!

Guest Review

BEST DESTINATION

"We were here for our 1997 Medical batch reunion. Many friends are working as successful doctors in all parts of the world.

All friends appreciated the location, hospitality and food at the resort. Resort staff were very cooperative. I recommend this place for every type of occasions where you don't want to compromise at any level. We had karaoke session, outdoor games, live band DJ, bonfire, swimming, carrom competition and what not during our stay. We all gathered after 22 years, and Madhubhan Resort & Spa made that experience memorable for everyone."
